Faculty of Economics Doctoral Students Union Representative candidates 2026

Gábor Dragonya

As a doctoral student, I consider it important that students' opinions and needs are properly represented in university decision-making, and that information affecting them is made available quickly and transparently. As a representative, I would like to strengthen dialogue between doctoral students and university bodies, while also contributing to the development of a more active and supportive doctoral community.

Jenő Fáró

My name is Jenő Fáró, and I am a fourth-year PhD student. My research focuses on consensus measures. During my doctoral studies, I have gained valuable insight into the circumstances and challenges faced by PhD students. Building on these experiences, I would like to represent the interests of the doctoral students of our Faculty.

Benjámin Forgács

My name is Benjámin Forgács, a first-year PhD student at the Doctoral School of Business and Management. My research focuses on the examination of romance scams. I believe that successful PhD years and effective research work require not only dedication, but also a supportive, well-informed, and cohesive community. My goal is to serve as a reliable and proactive bridge between doctoral students and the university/faculty leadership.

Gergely Gazdag

I am a second-year doctoral student at the ELTE Faculty of Economics and an assistant lecturer in its Department of Management and Business Law, so I know the faculty from both sides: as a student and as a lecturer. I also have experience in leading a student community, having served as president of the BME College for Advanced Management Studies (BME Management Szakkollégium) at the Budapest University of Technology and Economics. As a representative, I would work to bring methodological support, publication opportunities and international conferences within easier reach of doctoral students. Finally, I would also like to make sure that their teaching duties leave enough time for research.

Levente Molnár

My name is Levente Molnár, a second-year doctoral student, and my research area is management. During my previous bachelor's and master's studies, I had the opportunity to take an active role in the Board of the Student Union of ELTE Faculty of Economics (ELTE GTK HÖK), as well as in the Cabinet of the ELTE Student Union (ELTE HÖK Cabinet). Building on the experience gained there, I would like to represent the interests of the doctoral students of our Faculty.

Richárd Éberle

My name is Richárd Éberle, a first-year PhD student, and my research area is financial mathematics. I would like to actively participate in the community life of the doctoral school, represent student interests, and contribute to ensuring that doctoral students' opinions and suggestions are properly reflected in decision-making.
