Faculty of Law Doctoral Students Union Representative candidates 2026

Hargita Vörös Emese

As a PhD student and an active member of the ELTE Faculty of Law community, I would like to represent students' interests and contribute to ensuring that their voices are genuinely reflected in university decision-making. As a faculty mentor in the Faculty's Mentoring Programme, I also directly support students in their university life. For this reason, I consider strengthening the student community, supporting student-led initiatives, and fostering an open and collaborative university environment particularly important.

dr. Lili Karácsony

Hi everyone! I am Lili Karácsony, a PhD student at the NMJ-EUGJ department and the current president of the doctoral students at ÁJK. For the 2026/2027 academic year, I would like to run again for a representative mandate to continue fostering cooperation and representation both within our faculty and across faculties.

dr. József Fábián

Hi everyone! I am Józsi, a second-year PhD student at the NMJ department. This year, I would like to become a representative and take part in the work both within our faculty and across faculties. I serve, and I will continue to serve as long as the nation benefits from it.

dr. Ábel Csifféry

As a representative, I consider it my priority to firmly advocate for the professional and academic interests of doctoral students at the Faculty of Law within the framework of ELTE EDÖK. In my representational work, I am primarily driven by a dual practical goal: on the one hand, encouraging international networking and mobility at the faculty level, and on the other hand, consistently advocating for the everyday financial recognition of doctoral students.

dr. Kíra Varga

I am applying to the EDÖK programme because I would like to become more actively involved in university life and contribute to ensuring that students' interests and perspectives are represented in university decision-making. I am also interested in community building, gaining new experiences, and working together with students who are similarly committed to making a positive contribution to university life.

dr. Péter Áron Virányi

As a second-year PhD student, I conduct research in European Union economic law, drawing also on the professional experience I gained at an international law firm. Through my work in the Doctoral Students' Council, I would like to effectively represent my fellow doctoral researchers and help ensure that, in this new era of science and technology, young researchers at ELTE can preserve the University's centuries-old academic traditions while also embracing the opportunities of the future. I believe that effective representation can foster a mutually reinforcing process of institutional and personal development, to the benefit of both the University and its students.

Bálint Karagich

My name is Bálint Karagich, a PhD candidate at ELTE researching the post-transition economic positioning of oligarchs in democratising autocratic systems, and from this autumn a seminar leader for the Introduction to Public Policy course. I would like to put the experience I gained leading a government-affiliated policy institute, coordinating the youth portfolio of Hungary's EU Council Presidency, and heading an organisation that connects young Hungarians studying abroad to work for the community. I am motivated to contribute meaningfully to the work of the faculty and its doctoral students through transparent and effective representation.

Réka Diószegi

My name is Réka Diószegi, I am a first-year PhD candidate at the Doctrorate School of Law. During my studies in Wales and the Netherlands, I have worked with many student-led groups, such as Lexpressed, UNICEF, Amnesty International, which highlighted the importance of students and researchers being not just mere participants, but direct contributors to these communities. As a representative, I would like to work towards building a doctoral community in which the diverse experiences, needs and circumstances of PhD students are represented. Beyond representation, I believe in fostering an active and supporting community that facilitates the exchange of knowledge and information, and access to professional and international opportunities.
